The News and Observer: GOP plan could make NC the strictest state for absentee voting. How would it work?

Jennifer Morrell, CEO of The Elections Group, which provides professional election administration assistance, said most signature verification is done by human evaluation. Morrell said that, where digital verification is used, it usually only recognizes perfect signature matches and is used for initial evaluations. It gets all of the easy matches out of the way so that humans can look at the rest, she said in an email to The N&O.
